

Cat Scratch Eye

by ChatGPT, (with minor tweaks by anonymous human)

There once was a man with a cat,
Whose love for his feline was where it's at.
But one day while playing,
The cat scratched the man's eye,
And so then off to the urgent care clinic
the man did badly need to fly.

The man laughed and joked,
As the doctors and nurses yoked,
His eye with a bandage and patch,
But little did he know that such a minor scratch,
Would ultimately lead to loss of his visual hatch.

At the clinic, the staff all laughed,
As they swapped jokes about cats,
The man joined in, despite the pain,
For the love of his cat, he'd do anything
Even laugh through the scratch and the strain.

Hey, What do you get when you cross a cat with a lemon?
A sourpuss.

Hey, Why did the cat go to outer space?
To find something meteor.

Hey, How do cats greet each other?
With a high-five, paw-bump or paw-shake, of course.

Hey, Why was the cat sitting on the computer?
It wanted to keep an eye on the mouse.

Hey, Why did the cat join the Red Cross?
Because it wanted to be a first-aid kit.

But alas, the treatment,
even tinged with humor,
was to no avail.
The man's vision began to fail,
Until he could see no more,
His once perfect sight,
Was forever gone, no more.
The man felt a mix of emotions,
Love and anger, both in portions,
For his old, pleasant cat friend,
He still loved him, but anger did blend,
With the thoughts of his lost eye's end.

He tried to move on,
But the anger lingered on,
He struggled to find a way,
To forgive his cat, and not let the anger stay,
For his love for his feline was here to stay.

He thought about all the good times,
The cuddles and purrs, and the playful climbs,
He remembered the love in the cat's eyes,
And he knew that's what mattered, no surprise,
The anger melted away, and love did arise.

In the end, the man found peace,
In his love for his cat, despite the cease
Of one eye's sight that was lost,
He learned to forgive, at any cost,
And the two friends, man and cat, remain close.